INTRODUCTION.

name of Holt is one of ancient origin, and is defined by well as "a grove, or small forest." On the South Downs of d, generally if not always, it is a small hanging wood.
ysays "a copse, a wood, corresponding with the German, Another authority defines it "a peaked hill covered ood." Thus in Tuberville's Songs and Sonnets, occurs the g:

"Ye that frequent the hilles
And highest holtes of all,
Assist me with your skilful quilles
And listen when I call."

name of Holt is applied to a number of towns and parishes in
d. Thus: Holt, a market town and parish in the county of , having an ancient church, a shire hall, a work house and mar school founded by Sir J. Gresham in 1654, an excellent and a scholarship and fellowship at Sidney college, Cam-Holt, a parliamentary and municipal borough of North county of Denbigh. Also parishes in counties of Worcester, er, Dorset, and Wilts. It is also the name of an island in ific ocean in the Low archipelago.

ording to Dugdale, Burke, and other writers on English
ogy, there appear to have been two prominent families name: known as the Aston family of Holtes of Warwick-whose estates were situated near Birmingham, and the Grizzlehurst family, of Lancaster. Of this last family, notable person was Sir John Holt, Lord Chief Justice of the Bench. And of the former family, Sir Charles Holte, a friend of King Charles I, who built the elegant mansion at Aston Hall, at which place he entertained the king at the disastrous battle of Edge Hill.

Sir John Holt died at his seat at Redgrave (the former seat of Sir Nicholas Bacon, Lord Keeper of the Seals to Queen Elizabeth) without issue, leaving a large estate to his heirs. In March, 1745, the will and codicils left unadministered by the majesty's solicitor, administration was granted to Thomas Thurston Esq., the lawful attorney of Rowland Holt, great-grandson and heir-at-law of Sir John Holt. Mr. Thurston died in 1745 and the administration ceased and expired.

This estate, which has been estimated by some parties at millions of pounds sterling, is still unsettled, awaiting partition and heirship.

The Andover family of Holt in the United States, of which Nicholas Holt was the head, have the impression very general that their ancestor was the legal heir to this estate, and as a consequence, efforts were made some years since, by Mr. Stephen Holt of New York (the proprietor of the large hotel known by his name on the corner of Pearl and Fulton streets) in the English courts to procure a judgment in his favor for himself and other descendants of Nicholas Holt, in which endeavor he was unsuccessful. Holt died shortly after his return, being fully impressed that the estate would ultimately come into possession of his relatives. Another effort is soon to be made by Mr. S. Holt's family for the same object.

It would be a source of satisfaction, if the question could be definitely settled as to the ancestors of Nicholas Holt of Andover and of William Holt of New Haven, and particularly if it could be ascertained that this large estate would enure to their families. But this question is at present unsettled, and may always continue so. The compiler of this work, while engaged in collecting information of the descendants of these two persons—the heads of large posterity—was not indifferent to that part of the genealogy connecting them with the English families. And having been

P R E F A C E.

Having for many years taken an interest in genealogical investigations, the compiler of this volume in the year 1880 commenced collecting information of the descendants of William Holt, to which family he is allied by marriage. He thus engaged it was thought advisable to enlarge upon and include other families of the name, and the present volume is published with the design of preserving in convenient form, all the information that has been collected of Nicholas Holt of Andover, Mass., and John Holt of New Haven, Conn., and of their descend-

It was also designed to procure as much information of Virginia families (apparently of another connection) as possible, but owing to the civil war, very little has been accomplished. This information will be found in the appendix.

It has been the aim of the compiler, to make this volume as full and complete as possible, as well as accurate. Nothing is stated as a fact, without what is deemed competent proof; wherever a doubt exists, it is so stated, an interrogation point placed immediately after. The generations are made out from copies of original records by town clerks, and such records are taken as correct though the family account or tradition occasionally disagree. The records of over fifty towns have been examined, inscriptions on tomb-stones copied — applies to over 1,000 letters and circulars have been received imparting genealogical information. The amount of work performed, in collecting and arranging this large amount of matter, no one can fully realize unless he has had similar experience.

It is to be regretted that some families are not as fully given as would have been desired. This is owing to indifference and carelessness of those who have been applied to for information. This explanation it is thought necessary to give, as it was impossible to procure and publish what the families did not see proper to furnish. Generally, the connection have taken much interest in the enterprise and have promptly sent their family records. Errors of course are to be expected where so many families are used, and this volume being printed at a great distance from the residence of the compiler, he necessarily could not examine the proofs to the extent required.

The undersigned would tender his grateful acknowledgments to the following gentlemen and ladies who have furnished much information, and aided the publication of the work by liberal subscriptions: Rev. STEPHEN A. BOSTON, Boston, Mass.; PHINEHAS FORD, Esq., Batavia, N. Y.; Hon. PHILO WHITE of Whitestown, N. Y.; VINEY Esq., of Delphi, Indiana; HENRY HOLT and PHILETUS HOLT of New York city; T. C. FRYE, Esq., and Miss HOLT of Andover, Mass.; D. WILLIAMS PATTERSON, of West Winsted, Conn.; Miss F. M. CAULKINS of London, Conn.; and HENRY WHITE, Esq., of New Haven, Conn.

In conclusion, it is hoped that this volume will awaken an interest in family history, and be an acceptable memorial to the members of the family generally.

EXPLANATION.

A very little attention is necessary to understand the arrangement of this work.

The first column of figures denote the number of each individual continuous through each of the two large families. The second column shows the relation each person sustains in his family — the eldest being the section and numbered one. Figures found after the first column of the heading of each section thus (40) refer back to the individual in the family in which he or she is first named. Figures which are found in parentheses after the Christian name of a member of a family in parenthesis show the children of that particular individual can be found by referring to the corresponding marginal number. If no such number is found, it indicates that the history of that person's descendants are not given or that he or she died young, unmarried, or had no issue.

EXAMPLE.—On page 25, you will find at marginal number 180 of Joshua,⁴ jr., where will be found the date of his birth, marriage, as well as that of his wife, and other information respecting the family. When his name occurs the figures (572), and by referring forward to that number, you will find a section devoted to his family, commencing with Dinah, No. 572, No. 1, and concluding with Dorcas, No. 579, No. 1. A small figure ⁵ after each name indicates that the person is of the fifth generation.

ABBREVIATIONS.—b., born; bap., baptized; ch., children; d., daughter; m. married.

NOTE.—The compiler of this work would be obliged to such individuals of the family as discover any important errors or omissions to the correct record, to be preserved for future use.

Copies of this work can be procured of the compiler, by address at Madison, Wisconsin.

HOLT FAMILY.

AS HOLT AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

FIRST GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

HOLT was one of the first settlers of Newbury and the county of Essex, state of Massachusetts. Neither the name nor the place of his birth is known. From the date of his death it appears he was born in the year 1602.

The first definite information we have respecting him, is as a passenger on the ship James of London, William Cooper, master, from the port of Southampton, Eng., in and about the month of April, 1635, and of his arrival at Boston, in Massachusetts, the third of June following, after a voyage of fifty-eight days. Names of fifty-three male persons are found as passengers on the ship, "besides the wives and children of dyvers of them."

The first name that occurs the name of Nicholas Holte of Romsey, who was undoubtedly accompanied by his family, which included a wife, and at least one child. He proceeded to Newbury, and resided there for the period of ten years.

One of the Proprietors' Records of that town as one of his allotment's of lands are thus described: "A house lot of five acres be it more or less, bounded by High street on the South, Edward] Rawson on the North, Archelaus Woodman and James Brown on the East. Also, a field lot of five acres be it more or less, over the little river, bounded by the little river on the South, the little river on the North and Abraham Tappan on the West. Another field lot of five acres be it more or less of upland and meadow, bounded by the little river on the South, Henry Rolf on the North, the little river on the West, and the way, on the East." The present location of the first two grants of land, and the exact date when they were made, can not now be ascertained. The last lot of meadow and upland was granted in 1641, and afterwards became the property of William Trotter, and from him deeded to Nicholas Holt, and from him to John Wolcott, and is now owned by Little, and is called Holt's Neck.

The first book of church records of Newbury, prior to 1637, is lost, and consequently his name is not found; though there is some possible doubt of his being a member of the church at that time.

In 1637, his name appears, as one of ten persons who were chosen to vote to prevent the re-election of Sir Henry Vane as governor, to strengthen the friends of Gov. Winthrop, went from Cambridge on foot (40 miles), qualified themselves to take the freeman's oath on the 17th of May, 1637. Vane was chosen governor, and Sir Henry Vane and his friends were in the minority.

His name further appears on the Newbury records: In 1638, when it was voted that Nicholas Holt and five others were fined two shillings and six pence a piece for being absent from meeting, having "due and fitt warning." And on the 1st of April following, he was fined the same amount for the same cause.

While residing at Newbury his children, Elizabeth and Samuel were born.

In 1644, Nicholas Holt removed with his family to Andover, where he was one of the original settlers of that place. On the town records, containing the list of householders in 1645, his name is the sixth. He was one of the ten persons, including the pastor elect that composed the church, and was one of the signers of the petition of Mr. John Woodbridge, Oct. 24, 1645.

As the early records of the town were destroyed by fire, with the exception of a few fragments, it is difficult to ascertain definitely the allotments of lands to him, by the town. In 1656, there is a memorandum "to enter grants of land in the book, y^e old being rent and in many places defective, and grants lost." In 1714, the proprietors made their return from those of the town, and in them is to be found many of the land sales to the Holts in small lots.

As near as can be ascertained, he had a house lot of 160 acres of meadow land, and 360 acres, on what is now called the Stony Plain. A portion of this land still remains in the family. The exact spot where his homestead was situated is definitely known. The following notices of him, are taken from the Records of Massachusetts.

"May 26, 1647, he was appointed in connection with Lieut. Marshall to lay out the way from Reading to Andover. Lieut. Sprague and Sergeant Marshall to view the return to the court of the necessity and charge of the way, and make return to the next session of this court." "At a court held May 27, 1652, he was appointed with Capt. John Sprague and Thomas Danforth of Cambridge, to lay out the way from Andover." And May 18, 1653, he was appointed Richard Walker, and Lieut. Thomas Marshall, to lay out the highway betwixt Andover and Reading, and at the next term of court, Sept. 10, 1653, the committee made a report of said Survey.

Nicholas Holt was married in England, a few years before he came to Massachusetts. The Christian name of his first wife was ELIZABETH, of whom nothing further is known than that she died at Andover, Nov. 9, 1656. He married second, June 20, 1658, Hannah, widow of Daniel Rolfe, and daughter of Humphrey Bradstreet. She died June 20, 1665, at Andover.

He married third Mrs. Martha Preston, May 21, 1666. She died March 21, 1703, aged 80 years.

Nicholas Holt lived to a good old age, and died at Andover, January 30, 1685, aged 83 years. He had the privilege of seeing his family grow up to manhood and womanhood. Of his ten children, eight were married and had families, one died before one year of age, and one probably died unmarried. As the infirmities of age came upon him he distributed his property to his children, and they agreed to provide for his comfortable maintenance as well as his wife if she survived him. There is no will on record. In early life he probably carried on the business of a tanner, as that calling is attached to his name on the ship roll. While in the prime of life, he was engaged in agricultural pursuits; a few years before his death, in dividing his property among his children, he styles himself "Dishturner," probably a manufacturer of woodenware.

There can be no doubt but what the same motives that actuated the other early settlers of New England, in leaving their pleasant homes in England and emigrating to this country had their due influence on him. That he was a religious man is evident from the fact that he was one of the original members of the Andover church, and in forsaking his native home in England to encounter the privations and difficulties of the wilderness, it was to enjoy the privilege of worshipping God, according to the convictions of his own mind, and his understanding of his word. While honestly and conscientiously discharging his duty in this regard by a consistent walk and conversation, he took an active interest in the public affairs of the town, and his appointment on important committees in laying out roads and other improvements, indicated that his services were valuable, and duly appreciated.

In the earlier part of his life he resided in the South Parish of Andover. He actively espoused the cause of his country at the beginning of the revolutionary war. He was at the battle of Bunker Hill; and was a brave and intrepid soldier. In 1795 he removed to the district of Maine and located himself in a township incorporated under the name of Albany, in the county of Oxford. This journey of 200 miles, over a rough and dreary road, was performed in 15 days with an ox sled covered with canvass; the sled containing furniture and other necessary articles, with the family, consisting of the father, mother, two sons and a daughter completing the lading of the vehicle. Two sons and a daughter had the year before cleared a few acres and built a log house and a barn. This was the 3d family that settled in that township. He was one of the number that organized the first church in Albany, and contributed largely for the support of schools, before any public provision had been made. 12 ch.

He was a man of great industry and energy of character; at the age of 19 he entered the army and shared largely in the sufferings, perils and privations of the revolution. He was an officer in Col. Durkee's regiment, and while stationed at New York, in the summer of 1776, assisted in removing the leaden statue of George III from its location in the old Bowling Green, and manufacturing the same into bullets for the use of the army. In September of the same year he was at the battle of Long Island, and the next day after in the skirmish on Harlem Heights, when Col. Knowlton charged into the heart of the 42d regiment of Highlanders, and was mortally wounded from a bullet in the groin, and was taken from his horse by Sergeant Holt. He was in the retreat through New Jersey, and after crossing the Delaware was engaged at the battles of Trenton and Princeton. At Trenton he took the small pox of the Hessians, which almost cost him his life. He afterwards had charge of a company of men employed on the Mohegan hills in cutting and binding fascines for the use of the army, and subsequently served a year in the forts at New London and Groton, Conn. In speaking of the retreat through New Jersey, he often remarked: "All night Washington rode at the right of the column, a little in advance, but so near me that I could most of the time put my hand upon the rump of the powerful gray charger upon which he rode, made restive by the cold sleet pouring down upon us, but whose maddened spirit was curbed and controlled with apparent ease by his more powerful rider; his reign hand resting upon the pommel of his saddle. Washington spoke scarcely a word during the dreadful march."

After the war closed he returned to his farm on Orchard Hill, where he lived to the close of his life. 14 ch.

Soon after they had taken the required oath, Commodore Sauter came in with an American fleet, calling on the inhabitants to join him. Sauter delayed his movements until the British sent to New York and procured a fleet which ran up the Penobscot river and destroyed Sauter's fleet. Soon after the British sent out a proclamation calling upon all who had joined Sauter to take the oath a second time, which Jedediah refused to do; but with one of his neighbors bought a small schooner, and taking his wife and child went to Beverly, Mass. (300 miles), where he lived until peace was declared. The silver he wore in his head to the day of his death. He had, in 1854, two sisters and a brother living at Andover, whose united ages was 243 years. One of these sisters, Hannah, then the oldest inhabitant of the town, three-quarters of a century ago, fried doughnuts to supply the knapsacks of her youthful and patriotic brother at his departure for the seat of war. In the character of the deceased were included more than the usual number of those traits peculiar to the puritanism of New England. The product of the combination in him was a man who, among his fellows, resembled one of those old oaks, in all but its superior largeness, which he spent so much of his life in uprooting and working into form for the building of ships, among the more flexible and impressible trees about it. His temper was rugged, his convictions vigorous, and his mind strong. These attributes of character seemed also to endow him with something of the same quality of physical endurance; for at extreme old age until a short time before he was seized with his mortal sickness, "his eye was not dimmed or his natural strength abated."

Of earthly things, the Bible held the first place in his affections. At his funeral the Rev. Mr. Greene bore his testimony, derived from an acquaintance of twenty-four years with Capt. Holt, to his genuine puritan devotion to this book, in his estimation so priceless; even the preacher's own views had been often quickened by those of this humble disciple of Jesus. Mr. Greene spoke with evident feeling and great force of this striking manifestation of knowledge, of undoubted confidence and actual reliance on the word. He remarked how his love of it had kept this lowly follower from wandering in the new ways, after the new conceits. It followed, as is well known, that he did not participate in what seemed to him as taught by the scriptures, some of the leading follies and errors of the day.

Capt. Holt was a poor man. It may well be said that the want of earthly riches made him more sensible of the riches of divine grace. His trust in these heavenly treasures composed and exalted his mind in health, comforted and supported him in sickness and adversity, and made death itself appear to him the friend that should lead him to his Saviour.—Andover newspaper.

The following memoir has been furnished for publication by his son, Jacob F. Holt, Esq.

Uriah Holt, son of Jacob Holt, was born in Andover, Mass., May 25, 1775. His mother's maiden name was Rhoda Abbot. Coming into being at a sublime and critical period of his country's history, his young life cherished by the rebellious milk of her glorious trial, he revered the name and spirit of the revolution, and always spoke with a soldier's ardor of that gallant and patriotic struggle. Whenever he happened to mention his birthday, he usually added that he "was twenty-three days old when the famous battle of Bunker Hill was fought." The circumstances were, indeed, such as would kindle pride in a mind less earnest; in him the only exhibition of feeling appeared to be that of gratitude. His father was on the battle-ground, with his team of oxen, engaged, while the contest was raging, in erecting barriers of defence against the enemy. The father of his future wife, Capt. Benjamin Farnum, was there, fighting bravely at the head of his men, and receiving wounds which, though he lived to a great age, never effectually healed. A favorite uncle, Capt. Walker, was mortally wounded, dying shortly after in Boston.

The parents of Uriah Holt, though poor, were highly respectable. They were unable to afford their children much of what is usually denominated learning; but what is better, they instructed them in the great principles of truth and piety. These principles took root, early, deep and earnest. They were the foundation of that exaltation of mind and character which constitutes a peculiar, as it is the highest, excellence of the Holt family. Whatever was built upon this beautiful and sure basis grew up and expanded into the most graceful and solid proportions. The subject of this history partook largely of these fundamental elements. His mind was early inspired with the belief that it is better to be good than to be great; and through all the aspirations of his life, as well as in the discharge of his official duties, he neither lost sight of nor forsook this sublime maxim, but ever held fast his integrity. To these leading traits of his character the reader is not unfrequently compelled to return for a solution of causes; and it is only by keeping them in mind that his singularly upright course of life can be fully understood and appreciated.

In 1795 his parents moved into a township of wild land in the province of Maine. Uriah, with his brother Stephen, had been there the year before, accompanied by one sister, Rhoda, had erected a large log house and a good barn, and cleared a portion of land. Here his parents spent the remainder of their days. Here he, when the sturdy occupations of the farm were brought to a close by the gathering darkness of evening, with frugal hand, laid bits of resinous wood upon the fire, and beneath their encouraging blaze pursued his mathematical and other studies. The poverty of the family demanded his daily toil, but he turned the silent hours of night into watchful guardians of study, whilst in never wearying lucubrations he chronicled his name along with the eminent and self-made men of the earth.

The fall after he was twenty-one he went to Andover, and in the Phillips Academy acquired, amongst other branches, the rules of navigation, intending to go immediately to sea,—an early inclination towards that life having been encouraged by a relative, a sea captain of Salem. He relinquished this plan upon the urgent entreaty of his parents, spent the winter of 1798 in study, attending this time to the rules of surveying, and returned to Maine. In 1802, the township in which his parents lived was organized as a plantation by the name of Oxford, and he was chosen clerk and one of the assessors. The next year the plantation was incorporated into a town by the name of Albany. He was clerk of Albany five years, selectman and assessor four years, and two years town treasurer. Betwixt the year 1802 and 1809 he was elected to various offices in Albany thirty-four times.

In 1808 he married Miss Hannah Farnum, daughter of Capt. Benj. Farnum, of Andover, Massachusetts. Being town clerk at the time, he was obliged to publish himself. Of his marriage it may be said that it was a most happy one. Opposite in some qualities, with geniality of tastes and sentiments, the “very two” became a perfect one. Mrs. Holt was a model of Christian excellence. Mild as the gentle zephyr, firm as the devoted martyr, constantly reflecting the divine purity of her mind, the influence she exerted over her husband and family was strong and abiding. Ten children, five boys and five girls, were the fruit of this marriage; and though she was generally feeble in body, a glance of her soft blue eye, that never beamed but with maternal love and tenderness, was sufficient to secure the most willing obedience. In the training of her children, though the line of her labors was parallel to that of her husband’s, there was one marked distinction. He talked to them of honor and morality; she told them of a GOD and a SAVIOR. He would often repeat to them wholesome maxims of life; she taught them hymns and the Lord’s Prayer. There was no antagonism in their methods; each was but a necessary part of a perfect theology. He invariably showed the greatest deference to her judgment, always referring his children to their mother whenever any doubt existed in his own mind; and he paid her the beautiful tribute of requiring them to seek her counsel in cases even where he could see no objection to their wishes. Having presented all of her children at the altar of baptism in infancy, no woman ever gave herself more fully and constantly to the performance of its sacred vows. She died in 1835, at the age of forty-five years; but she had lived to witness many happy results of her watchful and pious care, and Providence had given to her a daughter, strong in mind and soul, to whose charge she could safely resign her remaining labors, when she was called to leave them.

In 1800 Edward Cutts, judge of probate, appointed Mr. Holt administrator of the estate of John Chandler, and, in 1803, of Mrs. Chandler, widow, at which time he was also chosen and appointed guardian of two children of the deceased. In 1804 he received from Governor Strong, of Mass., a commission of justice of the peace for the county of York, and was recommissioned the next year justice of the new county of Oxford. In 1804 Benjamin Weld, of Boston, Mass., gave him power of attorney to sell and convey lands in New Hampshire; these lands he had previously lotted out. In 1805 Mr. Spooner, of Massachusetts, empowered him to sell and deed his lands situated in the town of Bethel, in the province of Maine. He received powers of administration of estates in 1806 and 1809. In 1809 John Phillips, of Andover, Mass., gave him power to sell lands for him in the county of Cumberland.

Near the close of 1809 he moved from Albany into Norway; and now seem to have become more intense those labors which occupied his time by day and night till old age. In 1810 he was appointed administrator of the estate of Dea. Jonathan Holt, of Albany. In 1811 Governor Gerry commissioned him justice of the peace. In 1812 he was chosen selectman and assessor, was reelected in 1813, in which year also he was recommissioned justice of the peace. He was reelected selectman and assessor in 1814, '15 and '16, but declined serving the last year on account of the pressure of other business. In 1817 Judge Dana appointed him administrator of the estate of Stephen Holt, Esq., of Albany. He was elected selectman and assessor in 1818; was reelected in 1819, in which year he was appointed administrator of the estate of Lemuel Shedd.

In 1810 J. Phillips, of Andover, appointed him his attorney to sell any of his lands in the district of Maine, situated in several different townships. In 1812 Dea. Stone appointed him his attorney to sell lands. In 1814 J. Phillips appointed him his attorney to have $4200 worth of his lands appraised. In 1818 Zechariah Wyman, of Woburn, Mass., appointed him his attorney to take lawful possession of a lot of land in east Andover, in the district of Maine. In 1820 J. Phillips appointed him his attorney to sell and convey lands situated in four different towns in New Hampshire. This year he was also elected selectman and assessor, and recommissioned justice of the peace. He was reelected selectman and assessor in 1821, '22 and '23; was reelected in '24, but declined serving. In 1825 he was reelected to these offices and also chosen representative to the legislature. He was reelected to the legislature in '26, '27 and '28, was selectman and assessor in '26, '27, '28, '31 and '32; and in most of the years when he was selectman he was also one of the overseers of the poor. In 1833 he declined being elected to any office. He had been elected nineteen times selectman and assessor. Three times he declined serving, "knowing," as he says in his notes, "that he had been elected to various offices in Norway more than any other man."

In 1820 Samuel Farrar, Esq., treasurer of the trustees of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., appointed him attorney to set off to the widow of Maj. Jonathan Cummings her right of dower where entitled to it, and to take such measures as he should deem proper for the collection of the debts due the trustees. In 1823 Farrar appointed him attorney to sell any of the trustees' land in their half-township, situated in the county of Oxford, Maine, and to sell any of their farms and lots in Norway. Later in the same year he was empowered to sell and deed any of their land and buildings in Norway. In 1830 Leonard Richmond, of Wilton, appointed him to sell and deed lands of his in New Hampshire. In 1826 Gov. Paris commissioned him justice of the peace and for the quorum; he was recommissioned by Gov. Smith in 1833, and by Gov. Fairfield in 1840.

As a land surveyor it is doubtful whether this country contained his equal; certainly he had no superior. He was a skillful draughtsman, and generally drew plans of his surveys. Many of his surveys were original; others were the corrections of erroneous ones, or the reestablishment of lost lines. Of his labors in this department he says: "I have, since 1799, surveyed and lotted, in tracts of one hundred acres and upwards, for settling, over one hundred thousand acres of land; and I have made sundry other surveys, too numerous to name; for were I to give a full statement of the surveys I have made it would form a large volume." All of his surveys were distinguished for their nice accuracy. His lines always stood. No one ever thought of disputing them any more than of attacking a mathematical demonstration. It was with no spirit of boasting that sometimes, on returning from his exhausting labors through fields and woods, in adjusting disputed boundaries, he would say in weary tones: "Had others done their work as faithfully as I have mine, this tiresome and perplexing job would have been spared me." A few of his surveys may here be mentioned. In 1815 the court of sessions appointed him on a committee to view and locate a road from Bethel through Greenwood and Woodstock: these three towns are in Oxford county. In 1824 he surveyed and settled, under appointment of the court of common pleas, a disputed line between James Walker vs. Hezekiah and Amos Andrewson. In the same year the supreme judicial court appointed him on a committee to survey several routes for alterations in the county road from Hebron, in the county of Oxford, to Woodford's Corner, near the northerly line of Portland, in the county of Cumberland. This survey was, in all the routes, 158 miles, 254 rods, in length. In 1825 the supreme judicial court appointed him one of a committee to locate a county road from Hebron through Poland, New Gloucester, Gray, Cumberland, Falmouth and Westbrook, near Portland. In the same year he was appointed by the court of common pleas to survey a disputed line between Clark C. Whitney and James Holmes, and by the supreme judicial court on a committee with Gen. Russell, of North Yarmouth, and Lawyer Bradbury, of New Gloucester, to view several routes for an alteration in the road leading from Gray Corner through Gray and Gorham, and so on through the county of York to South Berwick: this last was a very lengthy survey. In 1826 he received three appointments from the supreme judicial court, one of which was to survey a road in the town of Rumford, another to survey the lines in dispute between Rufus G. Amory, of Boston, Mass., and Nathaniel Tyler, of Gilead, and a third on a committee to view certain roads in the counties of Oxford and Kennebeck. In 1827 he was appointed by the supreme judicial court to survey and settle the disputed line between Dr. Bridgam vs. Waldren, of Buckfield. Of this survey he says: "It was a very perplexing and costly one, but was made to the acceptance of the court." In 1828 he was appointed by the court of sessions to survey a road in the town of Bethel; and was appointed by the supreme judicial court to settle the lines in dispute between Capt. Blake vs. Col. Clark, of Turner: "a very perplexing survey," he says, "but made to the acceptance of the court." Though he speaks of some difficult surveys, he has mentioned none that were not accomplished to the satisfaction of the court or party. In the most of them he is at the pains to add this; probably because they were his most important surveys, and make up the few mentioned in this little memoir.

In 1831 the legislature of Maine appointed him on a committee to settle the line between the town of Gray and the town of Windham, in the county of Cumberland. The committee met the selectmen of those towns and examined the witnesses. It appeared that there were two lines spotted, seventeen rods apart; that the true line was seventy-two years old, the false one not so old. The committee went into the woods, had the spotting of several trees cut out, and by counting the grains of the wood ascertained the true line.

The following is given with greater particularity: "Oxford, ss. Sup. Jud. Court, May term, 1832; Samuel Haven et al. vs. Jacob D. Brown et al. And now by the consent of parties the Court appoint Uriah Holt, Esq., surveyor, to run out, ascertain, locate, mark and establish the lines and boundaries of lot No. 5 in the second range of lots in Oxford, late Hebron, according to the new survey bounding the same on Hogan Pond, and extending to the easterly end of said lot, which lot, so ascertained, marked and established, is to be taken as the lot mentioned in the Plfs' bond to said Brown dated August 17, 1826, set forth in the present action; said surveyor to appoint his own chainmen, all to be under oath; said surveyor is also to inquire and ascertain whether any part of the trespass complained of was done over and beyond the limits of said lot so ascertained and established, and, if any, to estimate the amount of damages. And the parties agree that judgment shall be entered for the Plfs. for the sum thus ascertained and for all cost; and that if no part of the trespass complained of was done within said limits then Defs. shall have judgment for their cost. The parties further agree that said surveyor shall inquire and determine whether any timber has been taken from said lot No. 5 by the Plfs. or their agent since the date of said bond, and the value thereof, if any, and the said value shall be allowed to the said Brown as a part of the payment by him made, as stated in the conditions of said bond. Simon Greenleaf, counsellor at law, for the Plfs.; Samuel Fessenden, counsellor at law, for the Defs." The writ is dated Sept. 28, 1829, and the trespass alleged as follows: "That the said Bolster and Brown, at Oxford, in the said county of Oxford, on the fifteenth day of January last, and divers other days and times, as well before as afterwards, between the first day of Janury and the first of April last, with force and arms broke and entered the plaintiff's close, being a certain lot of land of the plaintiffs' situated in said Oxford, to wit, lots No. 5 in the first and second range of lots in what was originally the town of Hebron, containing two hundred acres, more or less, and cut and carried away two thousand mill logs, the property of the plaintiffs, of the value of one thousand dollars, and the bond filed in the case is dated in fact August 7, 1826. R. K. Goodenow, Clerk." Mr. Holt "appointed Henry Rust and David Noyes, Esqs., both of whom are surveyors of land and gentlemen of high standing in Maine. Surveyor and chainmen were sworn by Joshua Smith, justice of the peace, to perform the survey. In making it, and ascertaining the amount of trespass, the parties had their lawyers to aid and assist them; but they were gentlemen and did not hinder the survey. It was a very arduous one, but he made it to the acceptance of the court, and he believes to the satisfaction of the parties. To ascertain all the facts in the case he spent fifteen days."

In March, 1826, he was appointed by Gen. Irish land agent of Maine, to survey township No. 5, in the first range of townships on the easterly line of New Hampshire and west of the Bingham land, to appraise the township, soil and timber—it was rich in timber—and to see if any trespass had been committed. This service he performed to the acceptance of the land agent. In June of the same year Gen. Irish appointed him to assist Gen. Webber in surveying and exploring timber land in the county of Penobscot, which service he performed; and in the autumn of the same year, at the request of Irish, he went with Webber and surveyed and explored several timber townships in that county. In 1834 he was appointed by the town of New Gloucester to survey a road in that town, which road he surveyed. In 1835 he was eighty-eight days in the employment of Isaac Small, land agent of Maine.

Mr. Holt was distinguished as a farmer. Indeed this was the favorite pursuit of his life. His neat, well-ordered fields, growing orchards and excellent fences were objects of universal admiration.

He spent a good deal of time in the cultivation of fruit trees, having several large orchards and setting, grafting and selling thousands of apple and pear trees. No man was ever more methodical or exact; and surely few men have filled up the hours of their lives with such incessant labor. He never sought for office: evidently he did not want it. The old Roman farmer, Cincinnatus, was not more wedded to his occupation; neither left it more reluctantly, nor returned to it with greater pleasure. During his public services he exercised as much influence as he wished, perhaps even more. The plan he adopted, more than forty years ago, of keeping the town books, though suffered to fall into disuse for many years, has now been resumed, as the only one adapted to a safe and systematic transaction of the business. While in the legislature he was a kind of privy councillor of the governor, being often sent for by him and consulted on various affairs of the state. His influence here seems to have been very commanding. Though often called away by other business, it was his habit to keep a private list of bills and propositions, which, according to their importance or chance of passing, he would manage to give his attendance to, getting them put off, if possible, till his return. At her separation from Massachusetts, Maine adopted, in her code, the general laws of the parent state. Mr. Holt was a conservative man, not friendly to over-legislation; and Maine had more need of intelligent and skillful protectors in her councils than of minute and prospective law-makers. His speeches were always brief, always clear, and rigidly to the point. The sparkling light of his epigrammatic sentences revealed the subject in features that could neither be mistaken nor evaded. Though remarkably courteous in debate, he was ready, bold and decisive. His vigilance and independent decision as a legislator is seen in the following little incident:—a bill was got, granting a certain sum for the building of a chapel for B—— college. Obligated to be absent on business a few days, and believing the appropriation unwarrantable at the time, he engaged a member to inform him of the progress of the bill. On the day after his return it came up for a final reading; the vote was taken, and declared in the affirmative. Holt was ready. He had spent the greater part of the previous night in examining the records; and he now rose and disputed the hasty and informal vote. "What!" exclaimed the bland and pliable speaker, "Esq. Holt, do you dispute the vote?" "I do, sir," replied he, and in a speech of less than half an hour routed the bill completely. He urged the fact that the college had already received two donations from the state; that it had a chapel suited to its real wants; and that he would not vote money to build costly churches while a large portion of the inhabitants of the state were compelled to worship in school-houses and barns.

His knowledge of the law was equal to that of the profession generally. The nature of his business compelled him to undertake many suits in court, though much opposed to litigation; and his judgment in the law was uniformly vindicated by the results. He was a thorough accountant. All his business transactions, no matter how minute they might be, were carefully recorded.

His old age was devoted to various benevolent purposes. He took a deep interest in Sunday schools, acting for a long time as superintendent of the one in his parish. He aided liberally and encouraged moral reform movements, contributing with both his purse and his pen to their advancement.

The last of his business offices to be resigned was that of agent of the trustees of the Phillips Academy. In Jan., 1848, being then in his 73d year, he thus writes: "I am preparing my accounts to settle with the trustees; for I find it hard for me to go into the woods to show people land." Aged and feeble, he felt little inclined to make so long a journey from home as to Massachusetts; but the reluctance was overcome by that ardent passion for his pursuits, which age might diminish but not destroy, and which would never permit him to trust to others what properly belonged to him to perform. In March he again writes: "Nothing but a just settlement with the trustees would tempt me to go to Andover this spring. I am in hopes of not being absent from home over four or five days, as my accounts for and against the trustees are fully prepared to sign; and I trust it will not require much time to examine them." June 17th he is again at home, and writes: "I got a settlement with the trustees of the Phillips Academy in Andover, and very glad I am; for I am tired of going to Greenwood to survey and sell land." Such is the spirit and the manner in which that incomparable worker surrenders at the close of day his conquered toils, and lays off the well-tried and easy-fitting harness: the intelligent reader needs no labored comments. Superior to and above all the labors of his life, however, is the man himself. These appear but as the toys of his genius; and in spite of the tendency to measure men by their deeds done, the conviction forces itself that in the life of this man there is a possible to be looked at as well as an actual.

He died in the 75th year of his age, expressing on his death-bed an earnest and happy trust in the Savior of men.

DEATH OF A VENERABLE TEACHER.—Mr. Benjamin Holt, for many years a teacher in the Hawkins Street School in this city, died at Lancaster, Mass., on Saturday last, at the age of 87 years and 7 months. The deceased will be remembered with pleasure by a large number of our citizens, who were acquainted with him while he was in the public service. His scholars ever retained the highest regard for their honored teacher, as he possessed those qualities which attract the young. The older members of the Handel and Hayden Society will recall the interest Mr. Holt manifested in that organization. He was its president, we believe, in the days of its highest prosperity. He married a daughter of the Rev. Thomas Baldwin, D. D., for many years pastor of the Second Baptist Church in Boston. Mr. Holt was father-in-law of William D. Ticknor, Esq., senior member of the publishing house of Ticknor & Fields.—Boston newspaper.

At the age of 16 years he apprenticed himself to learn the blacksmithing trade; and, having obtained his majority, he continued the occupation in the neighborhood of his residence until the age of 25 years. He then removed to New York city, where he lived one and a half years. He was present at the duel between Hamilton and Burr. From New York he removed to Morris county, N. J. In the month of February, 1800, in company with three other persons, he started with two sleighs for Kentucky; upon arriving in Washington county, Pa., they purchased a flat bottomed boat and floated down the Ohio to a point eight or ten miles below the mouth of the Kentucky river (Gallatin county), at which place they arrived some time in April.

The spot upon which they debarked is now the town of Milton, Ky. Col. Holt here purchased 100 acres of land on the hill opposite Madison, Ia., and made a deadening on his land. Having remained a year and a half from his home, he concluded to visit his friends in Connecticut; with this view he hired as a hand on a flat-boarded trading boat bound for New Orleans, and having arrived at that city he took passage in a sailing vessel for New York. The vessel was becalmed for a long time in sight of the isle of Cuba, and the vessel did not reach New York until June 1, 1801. Having proceeded to his father's house, he remained there until June 1, 1802, at which time he returned to his land in the wilderness of Kentucky. He immediately put up a blacksmith shop on his land, working at his trade and improving his farm at the same time.

Col. Holt was at the battle of New Orleans, on the right bank of the river. He left Kentucky a captain of his company in the fall of 1814, and proceeded to New Orleans on a flat-boarded boat. The Kentucky troops, without arms, arrived on the 4th of January, 1815, and on the night before the battle crossed over to the opposite shore and did what they could on the morning of the 8th to prevent the enemy from landing; but being almost without arms they could do but little, and were withdrawn the day after the battle. The Kentucky troops, to which Captain Holt was attached, remained at New Orleans until the 18th of March, 1815, at which time they marched for camp Washington, seven miles in the rear of Vicksburg, Miss.; at this time he received the commission of major. He was ordered to remain at the camp in charge of the sick, and to give them assistance in their homeward march. He arrived at home July, 1815.

Col. Holt held nearly every office known to the militia service of his state, and after his return from New Orleans he held the office of colonel of his regiment; after which he received a commission as brigadier general; which office he declined to accept. He commanded the 51st regiment for a great many years. In Aug., 1828, in company with his son-in-law, Captain A. Wood, he removed to Carrol county, Ia., and purchased some property, and in 1820 took his family thither. Col. Holt died as he had lived, an honest, honorable and upright man. He was faithful to his country and fraternal to his fellow man. He d. at Delphi May 6, 1860, aged 90y. 8m. 11y.

In 1811 he left Willington to explore western New York; then the far west, and find a location for a future home. He passed nearly through the centre of the state and went as far as Buffalo, then a small trading port. The whole of that now rich and beautiful country was then an unbroken wilderness—the abode of wild beasts and savage men. On his return he forded the Genesee river where the city of Rochester now stands, and turned his attention to a more careful examination of the region bordering on Lake Ontario. He finally selected and bought a small tract of land in what was called the town of Penfield, about ten miles east by north from Rochester, and about three and a half miles south of the lake. In 1812 he made a permanent settlement there, moving out with his wife and household goods into that wild and unbroken country. He was 21 days on the road. His stakes still stand where he first stuck. During a period of 50 years he has owned and tilled those same broad acres. He was 73 years of age last October (1862), and is in the full enjoyment of all his faculties.

OF NEW HAVEN,

AND

HOLT FAMILY.

WILLIAM HOLT AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

FIRST GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

WILLIAM HOLT was one of the early settlers of New Haven, in the state of Connecticut. The exact time and place of his birth have not been ascertained. From the record of his death, which occurred in the year 1683, it appears he was born in the year 1610. He was undoubtedly from England, but the time when he came to New England is not known, nor at what port he landed.

The first information we have of him was the occasion of signing his name (with six other persons) to the New Haven colony constitution, on the first day of July, 1644. This constitution was revised and enlarged on the seventh of March previous, at which time many persons subscribed their names to it; and from the fact that William Holt's name was not attached at that time, the inference is that he was not then a resident. As he was not one of the first settlers at New Haven, his allotments of lands are not as large as many others; and at this time it is difficult to locate them. There are no records existing of the two first allotments, or divisions, to the first settlers. The earliest one recorded is the third, made about 1680, and which did not include any land in the town plat, or within two miles of it. The only way of ascertaining the first location (except in a few instances by special grants) is by a laborious tracing back of the title from the present owner, to the original owner, by means of the record of the settlements of estates in the probate office, and of the sales and conveyances of lands in the town clerk's office. The labor of this process is also increased by the fact that for more than one hundred years the streets had no specific names, but were all called either town street or highway.

The original home lot of William Holt was on the north side of what is now called Water street, and on that section of it which lies between Union street on the west and Olive street on the east. It contained about two acres, and had on the south the highway by the water side, on the north a tract of undivided land belonging to the town, called the Oystershell field, on the west the home lot of Thomas Morris, and on the east a home lot which in 1673 belonged to John Todd, a son of Christopher Todd. The original lot of William Holt was increased in depth by two several grants of land from the town, of small portions of this common land on the north; one of four rods deep, made in 1649, to William Holt, and the other of five rods, made in 1682, to John Holt, the son of William. The breadth of the lot on the street cannot be easily ascertained, because about the year 1720, this and two or three of the adjoining lots became the property of one owner (Moses Mansfield), and the original division lines between the lots were not noticed in subsequent conveyances. A part of the large lot thus formed, probably one and a half acres of it, was in 1771 sold to the notorious Benedict Arnold, and in 1782 was confiscated (together with the large mansion now on it) by the state of Connecticut, and sold by the state, as forfeited property, to Capt. John Prout Sloan, and in 1798 was purchased of his heirs by the celebrated Dr. Noah Webster, of dictionary celebrity, and was occupied by him as a mansion and a home lot for more than ten years. Probably one-half of the original Holt lot was in the portion sold to Arnold. In the New Haven records, under date Nov. 20, 1648, it is stated that William Holt and others petitioned the general court to have land on the east side, between Red rock and Mr. Davenport's farm—which petition was granted.

About the year 1675 he removed to Wallingford, when he conveyed his home lot in New Haven to his sons, Nathaniel and John.

William Holt was probably married in England. His wife's name was Sarah —, of whom but little is known. In July, 1656, her children, Eleazer, Thomas and Joseph, were baptized in her right, from which it is inferred he was not at that time a church member. She survived her husband, and married 2d, Deacon William Peck, who died Oct. 4, 1694, at the residence of his son in Lyme, Conn., aged 83.

William Holt lived ten years after his removal to Wallingford, and died there Sep. 1, 1683, aged 73 years. He left no will. His property was appraised by his son-in-law Abram Doolittle, and Eleazar Park, and amounted to the sum of £238; 10s., 9d.

Children of WILLIAM¹ (1) and Sarah Holt of New Haven.

2. 1. JOHN² (9) b. New Haven 1645; m. Jan., 1673, Elizabeth, daughter of John and Tabitha Thomas. She was b. Mar. 15, 1648. He d. at East Haven June 16, 1733, aged 86. She d. at New Haven. 4 ch.

There is not found in New Haven any allotment of lands to him in the third division, made about 1680. He had an allotment of 20 acres as being a descendant of the original proprietor and being a resident of the town with his family. When his father removed to Wallingford he conveyed to his sons, Nathaniel and John, his home lot in New Haven, and the former, who was a resident of New London in 1689, sold his interest to his brother. John Holt, in 1721, sold this property to Moses Mansfield. In deeding this property he styles him a mariner. He subsequently removed to East Haven.

3. 2. NATHANIEL² (13) b. New Haven 1647; in 1673 removed to New London, and in 1689 to Newport, R. I. He held the military title of sergeant, and was sent into the Narraganset country; during King Philip's Indian war, and was wounded in the shoulder at the Great swamp fight, Dec. 19, 1675. In Oct., 1678, the general court, on his application for relief, having, as he says, been severely wounded in the cause of his country, awarded him the sum of £5.

His two sons inherited from their grandfather, Thomas Beebe, and their uncle, Thomas Beebe, who died childless, a valuable homestead in New London known as the Holt Homestead. It was situated on what is now called Truman street, occupying the space between Hempstead and Black Hall streets, and now covered by at least a dozen dwelling houses with gardens and spaceways for each. While residing at New London he followed the business of ship carpenter. He m. 1st, April 5, 1680, Rebecca, daughter of Thomas and Millicent (Ash) Beebe, who d. He held the military office of ensign. He purchased in New Haven prior to 1686 a house lot formerly belonging to John Thomas, his father-in-law, on the opposite side of the town from his father's home lot. It had its front on what is now called Morocco street, and on that section of the street which lies between Cayuga avenue on the south and Davenport avenue on the north. His house was at the top of the bank and not at the foot where the present houses are built. His lot contained one and a half acres, and was bounded eastward by the highway or creek, northward by the home lot of Isaac Beecher, sr., the ancestor of Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher, westward by the land of Henry Glover, and southward by the land of Tabitha Thomas.

HON. GEORGE B. HOLT.

This gentleman was born in the town of Norfolk, Litchfield county, Conn., and is now in the 74th year of his age. With fine talents, more of a practical than of a showy kind, he has been enabled to leave his mark, broad and deep, on the early legislation of Ohio, and the future historian, in giving to the public that desideratum, a history of that state (for it has yet to be written), must give the name of Mr. Holt a place among the patriotic and far-seeing statesmen of the commonwealth, who, a quarter of a century ago, planted the seed which made Ohio the third, if not the second in rank among the states of the Union.

The parents of Mr. Holt, early designed him for the legal profession, and his inclinations nothing averse to the course marked out, he entered the law school of Judges Reeve and Gould, in Litchfield, and in 1812, underwent an examination, and being found qualified, was licensed to practice law.

Ohio, at that time, was in the far west, and the hardy emigrants who had sought its wilds, after the close of the war, were loud in their praises of its vast fertility, and of the magnificent wildness of its scenery. The ambition of young Holt was fired—he wished to see the country—to become a part and parcel of it, and to share the privations of its settlers; in 1819 we find him a citizen of the then small village of Dayton, and the following year he raised his sign as an attorney at law.

The profession of law, at that time, was no sinecure. The circuits extended over many counties, in most of which roads were but bridle paths, and houses of entertainment few and far between. Bridges, there were none in the country, and when the streams were swollen with angry floods by the spring freshets, the members of the bar had to brave the torrent, and trust to a frail canoe, after driving their horses across, or else to plunge in, and trust to their horses to carry them safe across; and then, wet, chilled and weary, to traverse the woods for miles before they could espy the blue smoke of the log cabin, by whose hospitable hearth they could dry their clothes. The history of the early bar of that state, would be among the most readable of books, for many were the mishaps and adventures of these disciples of Blackstone and Chitty, which still live in memory, and are cherished by the younger members of the profession, as the child cherishes the legends in which his father bore a part.

During the administration of Mr. Monroe, party politics measurably died away, nevertheless there were times, places and occasions in which the spirit of party was temporarily aroused. Such was the fact in Dayton, in the year 1822, when Mr. Holt established, and for three years conducted the Miami Republican; a newspaper devoted to news, agriculture and the dissemination of democratic doctrines.

In the fall of 1824, Mr. Holt was a candidate for, and elected to, the legislature of the state, and deeply participated in the passage of the laws which made that session the most important ever held in Ohio. The lands of the state were then divided into first, second and third classes, and taxed accordingly—the improved farms as high as the wild lands of the same class. The injustice of the system, and the gross inequality of the classification, by which the sterile hills of eastern Ohio, in many cases, were taxed as high as the rich alluvian of the Miami and Sciota valleys, called loudly for amendment, yet it was not until the session of 1824-'25 that the evil was abated by the adoption of the ad valorem system, which, from that time, became the settled policy of the state.

New York, under the auspices of De Witt Clinton, had commenced her canal policy, by which the waters of the Hudson were united with those of Lake Erie, so as to have a direct water communication between the inland seas of the northwest and those of the Atlantic. The necessity of similar communications between the lakes and the Ohio river, sweeping through Ohio, had excited public attention, and with it, an opposition of a bitter kind. Judge Holt stood forward as a prominent advocate of the work, and employed the columns of his paper to favor the measure, and this fact brought him forward more prominently as the man for the crisis. He was elected to the legislature, and during the session which followed, the first canal law was passed, and under which the Ohio and the Miami canals were commenced, and the policy of the state in favor of internal improvements, from that moment was considered settled.

Ohio, at that time, had no school system. Parents in the thinly settled portions of the state, were forced to rely on chance for teachers, who were themselves better fitted to be taught, than to be the instructors of embryo men, and who mainly relied upon the birch and ferule, to beat learning into the heads of their pupils. Money at the time was scarce—but little produce was exported, and many men who had a farm they could call their own, were yet in circumstances too straitened to allow them to give their children that schooling so much needed, to make them useful citizens of community. To remedy this evil—to give all, the rich, the poor, the high and the low, the same benefits of a common school education, was a matter which excited much attention. Fortunately for the state, the legislature of 1824-'25 was composed of men of more enlarged philanthropy than any which preceded it. Mr. Holt was appointed a member of the committee to whom the subject was referred, and that committee reported a bill which passed into a law, and which established the common school system of Ohio. To us, at this day, it seems a matter of astonishment, that such a system should meet with opposition; yet such was the fact. It was deemed as a daring infringement on the rights of property—as a tyrannical and unjust law, which drew money from the pockets of the wealthy to educate the children of other men. The poor were appealed to, and were told by those who opposed the law, that their children were to be educated at pauper schools, and their pride was thus aroused to resistance; and, at the next election, the clamor became so great that many of the friends of the school system were sent into retirement. The colleague of Mr. Holt went down in the contest, and the judge was reëlected, chiefly from the fact that his services in securing the passage of the law for the construction of the Miami canal, in which his constituents felt a deep interest, gained him a popularity which ill-founded clamor could not shake. He was reëlected to the legislature at the next session.

In 1827, during the palmy days of the militia system, Mr. Holt was elected brigadier general, and for some years commanded one of the finest brigades in the state.

At the annual election in 1828, Mr. Holt was elected to the state senate, and served during the sessions of 1828-'29 and 1829-'30. He was chairman of the committee on internal improvements, then one of the most important in that body. During the last session of which Mr. Holt was a member of the legislature, he was elected president judge of the circuit court, in which he had practiced law, and served during the constitutional term of seven years. At the commencement of his term of service on the bench, the circuit was composed of the counties of Montgomery, Clark, Champaign, Logan, Miami, Darke, Shelby and Mercer. The counties of Allen and Putnam were subsequently attached to the first circuit, over which Judge Holt presided, in lieu of Clark, Champaign and Logan, which were transferred to the seventh circuit.

At the end of his service as president judge, Judge Holt partially resumed the practice of law, and, during which time, under appointment of the court, he served one year as prosecuting attorney of Montgomery county, one year in the same office in Mercer, and two terms in the same station in the county of Van Wert.

At the session of the legislature of 1842-'43, Judge Holt was again called to the bench, by a reëlection to the office of president judge of the same circuit, and served out his constitutional term.

During the interval between his first and second term as presiding judge of the common pleas court of his circuit, Judge Holt divided his time between his practice and agriculture, and stock growing, of which latter he was always passionately fond, and spent large sums in improving the breed of cattle—he having introduced into the counties of Miami, Mercer and Montgomery, the first thorough bred short-horned Durham cattle—part of which time he filled the honorable station of president of the agricultural society of Montgomery county.

At the breaking out of the cholera in Dayton, during the summer of 1849, it became an object of much concern to have an able and energetic board of health, that the fell ravages of the disease might be stayed; Judge Holt having been among the earliest and constant volunteers to visit and minister to the relief of the sufferers, was made president of the board; in which capacity his services were constant, efficient, and highly valued by the citizens.

During the spring of 1850, in casting around for a man, at once available for his personal worth and popularity, and with an enlarged mind, to be the candidate of the democratic party, in a county where the tide of popular favor runs in a contrary direction, Judge Holt was found to possess all the requisites, and he received the nomination, and was elected to the important station of delegate to revise, amend or change the constitution of the state. On his arrival in Columbus, he met Jacob Blickensderfer, of Tuscarawas, who had participated as a member from the county he represented in the house of representatives during the important session of 1824-'25. From the adjournment of that legislature, Judge Holt and Mr. Blickensderfer had never met, until they came together as delegates to form a new constitution for the state, for which they had aided, a quarter of a century since, in giving a canal policy and a school system, which have stood the test of time, and have aided much in bringing Ohio to its present proud position.

As president judge of the first judicial circuit, Judge Holt gained an enviable reputation. He ranked, before his election to the bench, as a sound lawyer, and to that he soon added the highest reputation of an able and impartial judge. During a service of fourteen years, in the service of the state, as presiding judge of a circuit distinguished for the legal talent of its bar, it is a high compliment to say, that he gave entire satisfaction, and that, popular as he ever has been as a man, his popularity as a judge exceeded it.

For forty-four years past, Judge Holt has been a member of the Presbyterian church, and although far from being a bigot in his religion, has ever been recognized as a sincere Christian. While on the bench he saw, in worst form, the evils of intemperance, and he was among the early, and he has ever been the steady friend of the temperance cause.

The mind of Judge Holt, as we before intimated, is less showy than solid. The distinguishing traits are a subjection of all questions to a philosophic test; industry in investigation, and a persevering pursuit of and rigid adherence to the just and true. In his domestic attachments, ardent and constant; ready and reliable in his friendships; and an active philanthropist. In politics he is a democrat, with a strong tendency to radicalism. In the convention he was at the head of the committee on jurisprudence, and though a silent member, yet if we mistake not, his impress for influence and utility, in the result of its deliberations, will be found deep and enduring.

In early manhood he was an earnest politician of democratic principles. In June, 1797, he established The Bee newspaper at New London, which was continued till 1802, when he removed with it to Hudson, N. Y., and it was continued at that place. This paper was a prominent organ of the democratic party, and under the administration of the elder Adams, the editor was arrested for libel, tried by the United States Court then sitting at New Haven, and, under the provisions of the sedition law, condemned to six months imprisonment and to pay a fine of $200. He was afterwards editor and publisher of The Columbian, and other newspapers in the city of New York.

In June, 1844, congress passed an act reimbursing him for the fine imposed under the sedition law, with interest.

He learned the business of a printer with his brother Charles, removed with him to Hudson, N. Y., and assisted in the publication of The Bee newspaper. In Jan., 1805, he removed to Herkimer, N. Y., where he published The Telescope, and the Farmers' Monitor, and subsequently other papers in the county.

He held the offices of justice of the peace, United States collector, judge of the county court, appointed Feb. 24, 1817, and first judge of Herkimer county, appointed Jan. 10, 1821, by Governor De Witt Clinton; which last position he held until Mar. 25, 1825; postmaster, etc. The new constitution having vacated all civil offices, and the tide of politics setting adversely, he retired to private life.

Thurlow Weed, Esq., of the Albany Evening Journal, who was well acquainted with Mr. Holt, in a notice in his paper, remarks:

In 1813, when we first made Mr. Holt's acquaintance, he was postmaster and justice of the peace in Herkimer, where he lived many years, greatly esteemed. Much later in life adverse fortune drove him back into a printing office in this city, where he worked as a journeyman, not only patiently but cheerfully. In all things Mr. Holt was an estimable man. In prosperity he was anxious about the welfare of others. In adversity, he was industrious, frugal and content; as a citizen, a parent, a friend, a politician and a Christian, he was upright, affectionate and faithful, uncompromising and conscientious.

Aug., 1844, Hon. John W. Ellis of Salisbury, and d. Oct. 19, 1844, aged 20. Mr. Ellis was a lawyer, and, during nine years, a judge of the superior courts. He was elected as governor of the state in 1858, and was reelected to that post in 1860; but died in a decline, at the age of 40, before serving out his second term of office. 2. Esther b. Nov. 9, 1830; d. April 24, 1832.

After acquiring an academical education at the seminary in Whitesboro, Mr. White spent three or four years as learner and contributor in the Columbian Gazette newspaper office in Utica. In 1820 he migrated to North Carolina and became the editor and proprietor of The Western Carolinian, which he continued to conduct until 1830, when he was appointed United States navy agent for the Pacific Station. Returning home in 1834, he established the North Carolina Standard, at Raleigh was elected state printer, and the Standard became the state paper. From 1837 to 1844 he was a purser in the U. S. navy, and was attached to squadrons in the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, and on the home station.

Mr. White removed to Wisconsin at an early period of its territorial existence, and ultimately fixed his residence at Racine. He was the editor of several newspapers, at different periods. In 1847 he was chosen a member of the Council of the Territorial legislature, and in the following year was elected to the senate of the state legislature. Here he took a prominent part in promoting various measures of public utility. As chairman of the committee on education and school lands, he shared largely in devising and framing the present system of public instruction in that state. At a later period, he was active in the founding of Racine College, under the auspices of the Protestant Episcopal church of that diocese, and was one of its trustees. In 1856 the college conferred upon Mr. White the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Chosen as one of the presidential electors of Wisconsin, he was selected as president of the electoral college of that state in December, 1852. He was also brigadier general of the state militia.

In 1849 Mr. White was appointed U. S. consul to the Hanseatic Republic of Hamburg, and resided there for one or two years. In July, 1853, he was appointed charge d'affairs to the Republic of Ecuador, S. A., and in 1855 was raised to the grade of Minister Resident in that country. He continued in the discharge of the functions of that office until September, 1858, and has now returned to take up his residence in Whitestown, his native place.

For a more extended notice of Mr. White's public career, the reader is referred to Livingston's portraits and memoirs of eminent Americans, vol. iv, from which most of the facts in the foregoing sketch have been taken.

He was brought up by his grandfather, Daniel Holt of New London, until 12 years of age. He was an active, enterprising lad, and at a very early age made several fishing voyages. While out upon Long Island Sound in his fishing smack in 1812 he was taken prisoner by a British man-of-war, and his friends heard nothing of him for more than two years, except vague rumors that he was acting as a pilot to the British fleet stationed in the Sound. A short time after peace was declared, he appeared suddenly at New London, stating that he had escaped from the Superb, 74, of the blockading squadron, on board of which ship he had been impressed during the whole term of his absence, and compelled to do duty as a British seaman. After peace was proclaimed he and 27 other seamen escaped and returned to their homes. After a short time this party enlisted on the U. S. frigate Constitution, and were on board of her when she had her last action. After the war he again went to sea and was supposed to have been taken by pirates and killed. He probably never married.

When Mr. Holt was about three years old, his parents removed to New York city, where he spent his early years. He entered Columbia college in October, 1818, at the age of 13½. He graduated in August, 1821, and in September of the same year, commenced the study of medicine with Dr. A. H. Stevens of his own city. He soon became a favorite pupil with his instructor, himself a very eminent man in his profession, and had nearly completed his medical course, when, in May, 1822, he was convicted of sin, to use his own expression, and obtained a hope in the Savior, in the summer of the same year.

He joined Dr. Spring's church in April, 1823, and was soon induced, partly by the advice of his pastor, and also by his own convictions of duty, to turn his attention to the study of theology; he entered Auburn theological seminary in February, 1824. He was licensed to preach in October, 1826, and was ordained as the sixth pastor of the Presbyterian church at Westfield, N. J., by the Presbytery of Elizabethtown November 13, 1827. On the 24th of July, 1828, he was married to Miss Emily Titcomb, at Newburyport, Mass.

His pastoral relation to the church at Westfield was dissolved June 8th, 1830, and on the 20th of April, 1831, he was dismissed from Elizabethtown presbytery to Hopewell presbytery, Georgia. During the winter of 1830 he preached at White Bluff, near Savannah, and during the succeeding year in the First Presbyterian church in that city.

The next winter he received a call from the Presbyterian church in Macon, Ga., to become their pastor, which he accepted. Here he labored under very discouraging circumstances, but with a good degree of success. After a pastorate of nearly four years, during which his health became much impaired, he again came to the decision, though with much reluctance, that it was his duty to ask a dismission from his people, and was dismissed November 21, 1834.

During the following winter, at a meeting of the synod of South Carolina and Georgia, he was unanimously appointed secretary of the Southern board for foreign missions, and immediately removed to Charleston and entered upon the work of promoting the cause of missions, which was ever very near his heart. He discharged the duties of this office with much zeal and faithfulness for one year, when, feeling that his health was sufficiently established to admit of his doing so, he accepted the call of the North church in Portsmouth, N. H., to become their pastor, and was installed Oct. 2, 1836. Here he continued nearly seven years; and was blessed of God with one of the most powerful revivals of religion which that church has ever enjoyed. But after seeing his church built up, and greatly increased under his ministry, he felt himself compelled by circumstances over which he had no control, to leave them and accept the call of the West Presbyterian church in Carmine street, New York, and was installed there March 20, 1843.

Here he experienced the first great affliction of his life, in the loss of his children; his infant daughter, Lucy, died very suddenly on the 2d of June, 1844, and his daughter Emily December 28th, 1845. Under the pressure of these afflictions, and his arduous labors, his health again failed, and he was dismissed from his people April 2, 1846. He was at this time entirely unable to preach, and was for a year or two laid aside from the ministry; but such was his love for his chosen work, that as soon as his voice began to return, he commenced preaching again; and in March, 1848, was installed pastor of the Congregational church in Greenland, N. H. He soon found that neither his own health, nor that of his family, would allow him to remain in the rugged climate of New England; and was again dismissed on the 7th of January, 1850, and in November of the same year he was settled over the Second Presbyterian church in Madison, Ia. Here he buried his youngest son, and the increased violence of his disease again drove him from his charge, when he removed to Evansville, in the same state, where he was ever ready to assist his brethren as his strength allowed, and where he was called to mourn the loss of his oldest son, a young man of fine promise.

On the Sabbath of June 12, 1854, he preached his last sermon, from Matthew xii, 41, with more than his usual impressive earnestness, in the Old Presbyterian church in Evansville, of which Rev. W. H. McCarer is the beloved and respected pastor.

Immediately after service he was seized with a severe attack of cholera, which finally terminated in his old complaint of the throat. During an illness of two weeks he bore his severe suffering with the most exemplary patience and resignation, and expired on Sabbath morning, July 2, 1854. In the words of one of his devoted friends, "He brought to his profession a well trained intellect, and a devoted heart. His ministry extended over a period of twenty-eight years. The great Head of the church owned his labors in several revivals of religion."

His remains rest in the cemetery at Evansville, beside those of his oldest son, whom he laid in the grave with the deepest sorrow, just eight months before his own death.

APPENDIX.

The following lines, on the death of a beloved relative, written by Mrs. S. M. Booth, and published in the Milwaukee Free Democrat, are here inserted at the request of a number of friends. D. S. D.

LINES

ON THE DEATH OF MRS. HARRIET HOLT, WIFE OF GEORGE F. ILSLEY,
Who died in Milwaukee, April 29, 1851, aged 23.

Tears for the early lost!
They are befitting thee, oh! youthful dead—
Strangely a shadow crossed
Thy buoyant spirit, and bowed down thy head.
Tears for the loved, sweet friends! let them be freely shed.

How hath the spirit passed?
Not by the warning of a slow decay.
Pale death around her cast
His chain too quickly, and she might not stay—
Oh! beauty, love, and youth, too soon ye pass away.

Was there no voice on earth;
No love to lure her from the spoiler's breath?
No ringing song of mirth,
To win her spirit from the clasp of death?
Ah, no! for all are mine, the ruthless conqueror saith.

As a sweet song half sung,
Whose echoes linger long upon the air;
So the freed heart—the young—
Hath flown in budding beauty where the fair
Sing, and sing ever—Friends! but ye will meet her there.

In the far land of rest,
Voices will greet her that she loved of yore.
A sainted mother blest—
A trusting heart whose dreams of life are o'er—
Now may they fondly love—and love forever more.

Oh! how the heart is bowed,
When one so good, and beautiful, is laid
Down in the mournful shroud!
Why breaks not the fond heart when young hopes fade,
When all we love on earth lies 'neath the willow shade?

Tears for the early lost!
They are befitting thee, oh! youthful dead!
Strangely a shadow crossed
Thy buoyant spirit, and bowed down thy head—
Tears for the loved, sweet friends! let them be freely shed.

Milwaukee, May 10.

Redgrove was one of the lordships, given to the Abbot of Bury by the Earl of East Angles, who fell 1016 at the battle of Assendium Essex, with Canute the Dane. After the dissolution it was granted by Henry VIII in the last year of his reign to Thomas Darcy, from whom it soon came into the hands of the celebrated family of the Bacons. Sir Nicholas Bacon, Lord keeper of the seals to Queen Elizabeth, made it his seat, and his descendant, Sir Nicholas was created by King James I the premier Baronet of England June 22, 1611. By one of his successors, this estate was sold, toward the close of the 17th century, to Sir John Holt, lord chief justice, in whose hands it continued till it became by marriage the property of Admiral Wilson.

Redgrove was built of stone by an Abbot of Bury and belonged to the prelate of that monastery. The house was rebuilt about 1770 by Rowland Holt, Esq., who also embellished that park at an expense of £30,000. The house is a spacious structure of brick, the center which projects is adorned with a portico supported by four large columns. The park is charmingly wooded, and has a fine lake in front of the house.

SIR JOHN HOLT.

Lord Campbell in his Lives of the Chief Justices of England, remarks.

"The unprincipled, ignorant and incompetent judges of the king's bench, who had been exciting alternately the indignation and disgust of the nation, were succeeded by a man of unsullied honor, of profound learning, and of the most enlightened understanding, who held the office for 22 years; during the whole of which long period, often in circumstances of difficulty and embarrassment, he gave an example of every excellence which can be found in a perfect magistrate. To the happy choice of Sir John Holt, as president in the principal common law court, and to his eminent judicial services, we may in no small degree ascribe the stability of the constitutional system of Great Britain.

Sir John Holt, son of Sir Thomas Holt, sergeant at law, was born in Thame, Oxfordshire, Dec. 30, 1642. He was educated at Oxford, became a student of law, was called to the bar in 1663, and rose to a great eminence as an advocate. In 1685, he was elected recorder of London, by refusing to give assistance to the arbitrary measures of the king, he was removed from the recordership of the city, but he retired with the approbation of an honest mind, and the regrets of the people of whose cause he was always the advocate in spite of the authority and influence of the court. His principles were too well known for him to be forgotten in times of emergency, and he was chosen member of the convention parliament in 1688, and he was appointed one of the managers for the commons at the conferences held concerning the vacancy of the throne. In April, 1689, he was appointed by William III lord chief justice of the king's bench, and admitted to the honor of privy counselor. In 1700 he was solicited to accept the great seal upon the removal of Lord Somers from the office of chancellor, but declined, and continued as chief justice till his death in 1709. He is memorable among the English judges for a thorough knowledge of the law, joined to an invincible firmness and resolution in supporting its authority. He held in contempt the assumed powers of a house of commons, when those powers were evidently hostile to the common law of the land. Of his integrity, courage and firmness in the discharge of his duties, a traditional instance is related upon the occasion of a summons from the commons to appear at their bar, for deciding in favor of the Aylesbury burgesses who had been committed for complaining about the illegal rejection of their votes. He took no notice of the first message from the house; and upon being summoned by the speaker in person, he told that officer to return at once to his chair, or he would commit him to Newgate. He was the intrepid assertor of the rights of the subject, and was remarkably jealous of the interference of military power in the execution of the laws; of which he gave a signal proof, when applied to sanction by the presence of one of his people, the proceedings of the military sent to quell a riot, excited by the infamous practice of crimping. The chief justice asked the officer what he intended to do, if the populace refused to disperse; he replied, "we have orders to fire on them." Have you so?" said the judge; "then observe, if one man is killed, I will take care that you and every soldier of your party shall be hanged. Sir, acquaint those who sent you, that no officer of mine shall attend soldiers, and let them know, likewise, that the laws of this land are not to be executed by the sword. These things belong to the civil power, and you have nothing to do with them."

Few instances, indeed, have been found in which judges have not acted the upright and honorable part in all cases of individuals brought before them; they have no motive to act otherwise; but the inflexible integrity of a judge is brought to the test when great political questions are to be decided; when one of the people, who is but as dust in the balance, is about to be borne down by a whole branch of the legislature. In such a case, LORD CHIEF JUSTICE HOLT was tried, and his decision has insured for him unfading immortality. He died March, 1709, aged 67 years.

His funeral took place at his manor of Redgrove, (formerly the property of Lord Keeper, Sir NICHOLAS BACON, where he entertained Queen Elizabeth). A magnificent monument of white marble was erected over his grave by his brother Rowland, at a cost of £1500, representing him in his judicial robes under a canopy of state seated between the emblematic figures of justice and mercy, with the following inscription:

HOLTE, OF ASTON.

The first of this family traceable is

SIR HUGH HOLTE, who m. Matilda, daughter of Sir Henry de Erdington, Lord of Erdington, and left a son and heir,

JOHN ATTE HOLTE, who m. temp. Edward II. Alice de Castello, daughter and at length sole heir of Sir George de Castello, and was s. by his son,

SIMON DEL HOLTE, who l^{ft} by his wife, Albreda de Bermingham, two sons, John and Walter. Th^e elder,

JOHN ATTE HOLTE, called senior, in respect that his ~~son~~ was living at the same time, 21 Edward III. He had also two sons, John and Walter: the first of whom,

JOHN ATTE HOLTE, purchased the manor of Dudston in the 38th of the same reign for forty marks from John de Grimesarwe, and Maud de Grimesarwe in two years afterwards conveyed the manor of Aston to the said John Atte Holte, denominated of Bermingham, as her charter, dated at Aston on Sunday next before the feast of St. Agapite the Martyr, testifies. He m. Eleanor, daughter and co-heir of William Durvassal, of Spernall, but dying childless, the estates passed to his uncle,

WALTER HOLTE, of Aston, escheator for the counties of Warwick and Leicester, temp. Edward III. and Richard I. who m. Margery, daughter of Sir William Bagot, knt. of Bagington, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN HOLTE, styled of Yardley, whose son and heir,

AUDOMAR HOLTE, was dispossessed of Aston by his uncle,

WILLIAM HOLTE, who, after great contests and an ultimate reference to the arbitration of Edward, Duke of York, and Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, appears to have retained possession thereof, having had a grant of said estate for life from King Henry IV. This William, 12 Henry VI. was one of the chief persons in Warwickshire, chosen to make oath for performance of divers articles concluded in the parliament then held, having the style of "William Holte, de Aston, Armiger." The grant of Aston being, however, but for life, and that estate eventually vesting in the crown, William's nephew,

JOHN HOLTE, son of Simon Holte, procured a patent, confirming it to him, with all the immunities thereunto belonging. This John was constituted escheator of the counties of Warwick and Leicester 16 Henry VI. and was afterwards esquire of the body to the same king, who, in recompense of his fidelity, made him ranger of Sutton Chase for life. His son and heir,

WILLIAM HOLTE, esq. of Aston, m. Margaret, daughter of

William Cumberford, esq. of Cumberford, in the county of Stafford, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM HOLTE, esq. who m. a daughter of Adam Knight, esq. of Shrewsbury, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS HOLTE, esq. of Aston, a learned lawyer and justice of North Wales temp. Henry VIII. as also in the commission of the peace and in the commission for taking the surrender of religious houses in that county. He m. Margery, eldest daughter and co-heir of William Willington, esq. of Barcheston, in the county of Warwick, who surviving him, became afterwards the wife of Sir Ambrose Cave, knt. chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, temp. Elizabeth. His son and heir,

EDWARD HOLTE, esq. of Aston, sheriff of Warwickshire 25 Elizabeth, m. Dorothy, daughter of John Ferrers, of Tamworth Castle, and had a numerous family; of which the eldest son and heir,

1. SIR THOMAS HOLTE, of Aston, who was of full age at the death of his father, was sheriff of Warwickshire 41 Elizabeth, and received the honor of knighthood, 18th April, 1603, from King James I. in his majesty's progress from Scotland to London, and was created a Baronet 25th November, 1612. Sir Thomas m. first, Grace, daughter and co-heir of William Bradburne, esq. of Hough, in the county of Derby, and had by that lady a numerous progeny. By his second wife, Anne, daughter of Sir Edward Littleton, of Pillaton Hall, he had no issue. His eldest son and heir (the only son whose issue survived),

EDWARD, one of the grooms of the bedchamber to Charles I. and in attendance on the king during the siege of Oxford, died there of a fever before the surrender, leaving by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. John King, Bishop of London,

ROBERT, successor to his grandfather.

John, d. unmarried.

Grace, m. to George Hampson, esq.

Elizabeth, m. first, to Duncombe of Surrey; and secondly, to Mr. Richbell, of London, merchant.

Catherine, m. to Sir Edward Nevile, knt. of Grove, Notts. Of his daughters, Anne m. Walter Gifford, of Chilington; Catherine became the wife of Roper; and Grace m. Sir Richard Shuckburgh, knt. of Shuckburgh. Sir Thomas was a gentleman of superior education, well versed in several languages, and highly esteemed in his county. Having amply increased his estate by his first marriage, he enclosed the park, and began, in April, 1618, the noble structure at Aston Stocklands, which Sir William Dugdale says "for beauty and state exceeds anything in those parts." He was nominated by King Charles I. ambassador to Spain, but by reason of his great age was excused. On the breaking out of the civil war he heartily assisted the king with his purse; but being very old, and of a quiet disposition, remained at his seat, without following the camp, where he had the honour of a visit from the king, who slept at Aston two nights immediately before the battle of Edge Hill. His disposition to the royal cause being notorious, and his son actually in the field, his house was plundered, himself imprisoned, his estate decimated, and penalties of all kinds inflicted upon him to the full amount of £20,000. He d. in the eighty-third year of his age, A. D. 1654, and was s. by his grandson.

II. SIR ROBERT HOLTE, sheriff of Warwickshire the year of the restoration, and the following year its representative in parliament, m. first, Jane, daughter of Sir William Brereton, knt. of Brereton, in Cheshire, by whom he had an only child, CHARLES, his successor.

He m. secondly, Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Smith, of Hough, in Cheshire, and had several children, but one only Robert, to survive. Sir Robert died 3rd October, 1679, and was s. by his elder son, III. SIR CHARLES HOLTE, M. P. for the county of Warwick in the first year of James II. m. Anne, eldest daughter and heir of Sir John Clobery, knt. of Winchester, and dying 20th June, 1722, was s. by his eldest son.

IV. SIR CLOBERY HOLTE, who m. Barbara, daughter and heir of Thomas Lister, esq. of Whitefield, in Northamptonshire, and had two sons,

LISTER, his heir.

CHARLES, sixth baronet.

He d. 25th July, 1729, and was s. by the elder,

V. SIR LISTER HOLTE, who m. first, in October, 1739, Lady Anne Legge, daughter of William, Earl of Dartmouth; secondly, Mary, daughter of Sir John Harpur, bart. of Calk, in the county of Derby; and thirdly, in 1754, Sarah, daughter of Samuel Newton, esq. of King's Bromley, in Staffordshire; but dying s. p. in 1769, was s. by his brother,

VI. SIR CHARLES HOLTE, M. P. for Warwickshire in 1776, who m. in 1755, Anne, daughter of Pudsey Jesson, esq. of Langley, in the same county, and had an only daughter and heir,

MARY-ELIZABETH, m. in 1775, Abraham Bracebridge, esq., of Atherston Hall, and had one son and one daughter, viz:

CHARLES-HOLTE BRACEBRIDGE, esq. of Atherstone Hall.

(See Burke's Commoners, vol. i. p. 270.)

Mary-Holte Bracebridge, m. in 1803, to her cousin, Walter-Henry Bracebridge, esq. of Morville, House, Warwickshire.

Sir Charles died 13th March, 1782, when the baronetcy expired. Under the will of Sir Lister Holte, who died in 1769, the manors of Brereton and Aston were settled on his brother Sir Charles for his life, with remainder to his issue male; remainder to H. Legge, esq. and his issue male; remainder to L. Bagot, Bishop of Norwich, and his issue male; remainder to W. Digby, esq. and his issue male; and lastly, remainder to the right heirs of the said Sir Lister Holte. Sir Charles left only one daughter, and the estates thus in reversion were estimated at about £800,000 in fee. In 1817, an act of parliament was obtained for the dismemberment of the estates, to satisfy the claims of the assignees and mortgagees of Abraham Bracebridge, esq. and other family claims, as well as to indemnify Mr. Legge and Mr. Digby (both being without heirs male) for the resignation of their respective interests. Under this act the estates have been sold.
